APPRENTICESHIPS

This is a list of the specifically-maritime apprenticeships currently available academic year 20/21. Many companies in the maritime sector employ apprentices in other fields, from engineering to marketing, which are not exclusive to the maritime industry, and we've not listed them here.

Sometimes the language used in apprenticeship titles is formal and can be difficult to fully understand. So, in the table below you will find easier to understand descriptions to the left and the formal apprenticeship title to the right. Along with a flag indicating where the apprenticeship is available. We've included the relevant flag to show where these apprenticeships are available because arrangements differ across the United Kingdom.

Apprenticeships are delivered differently in Wales and Northern Ireland. We are gathering information from both areas, and this flyer will be updated accordingly.

LEVEL 2 + LEVEL 5 ⚓	Deck and Engine Room Operatives (called "ratings") on sea-going ships, especially Ferries and Cruise Ships	Able Seafarer (Deck) + Maritime Electrical / Mechanical Mechanic + Deck Rating ⚓ Engine Room Rating ⚓
	Maritime Caterer: cooking and related skills, at sea	Maritime Caterer + Hospitality, with Maritime Enhancements ⚓
	Deck operatives on fishing boats	Sea Fishing ⚓
	Marina and Boatyard operative	Marina and Boatyard Operative +
	Port operations, which vary widely depending on the port: general cargo, specialist (eg oil, fish), passengers, etc	Port operative + Port operations ⚓
	Composite specialist roles within boatbuilding	Composites Technician +
LEVEL 3 + LEVEL 5 ⚓	Deck operatives on specialist workboats – small boats with 2/3 crew which (eg) support construction work, or take technicians to offshore windfarms	Workboat Operations + Workboat Operations ⚓
LEVEL 3 +	Trainee skipper on inland waterways (especially the Thames in central London), both passenger & freight	Boatmaster +
	Boatbuilding skills – which cover modern yachts and superyachts, as well as specialist commercial boats and traditional designs.	Boatbuilder + Boatbuilding and Repair ⚓
	Marine engineering, for both new builds and repair / refit and maintenance	Marine engineer +
	Coastguard	Maritime Operations Officer +

Higher Level Apprenticeships, typically for people with substantial prior experience, eg as an officer at sea.

LEVEL 4 +	Port management	Port Marine Operations Officer +
LEVEL 5 +	Marine pilot	Marine Pilot +
LEVEL 6 +	Harbourmaster	Harbourmaster +
LEVEL 6 +	Marine Surveyor	Marine Surveyor +
LEVEL 7 +	Marine Technical Superintendent	Marine Technical Superintendent +

There are very good prospects for advancement in all of these maritime occupations, where the ability to apply skills and knowledge and understanding is highly valued.

In addition to these apprenticeships, there are also three-year programmes (called cadetships) leading to roles as junior officers in the Merchant Navy, certification as an “Officer Of the Watch” (which is recognised worldwide) and an HNC, HND or Foundation Degree as the underpinning academic qualification. You can find out more on the Careers At Sea website (see link below).
